FOOTBALL ACTION on Beaty field is once more in progress as the 1960 Dragon squads begin pre-season workouts. Thursday was the first day for the rugged work will "separate the men from the boys".

The '60 squad is laden with many "green" lads, many from the undefeated Beaty Junior High team of 1959. Only five lettermen dot the squad, Ron Seder, Chuck Grinnen, Jack Siggins, John Wooster, and Pat Hartnett.

An exciting new face on the Blue and White team this season will be that of Dave Green, voted an All-State choice last season. Dave moved to Warren from St. Marys this spring.

STILL FLOWING. Not all of the sewage in and near Warren is being processed by the new sewage plant. Here is a sample that should be eliminated.

On the first day of regular practice under PIAA rules, Aug. 18, the staff had their boys doing routine drills, and were wearing off some of that extra weight under a blistering August morn sun.

The Dragons will open their ten-game slate on September 10 when the Corry Beavers come to Warren.

THE ATHLETIC FIELD is now being roughed in as the preliminary work nears completion. Activities on the field will not start until next spring, but when they do, Warren will be able to be very proud of its athletic site.

Powers Part Of Nerve War

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- Enhanced by the presence of his wife, his father and mother, the drama of the trial of Francis Gary Powers is intended by the Soviet dramatists to harrow the nerves of humanity on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

It is being staged to show the iniquity of the West, and in particular of the United States, and conversely the righteousness and the innocence of Premier Nikita Khrushchev. The script must portray him as the injured party betrayed by the perfidious act of President Eisenhower in sending an espionage agent into the heart of the Soviet Union and then openly proclaiming the right to do so.

What makes the ordeal especially harrowing for Powers' fellow-countrymen is that he simply does not fit the pattern. In the dirty business of spying, the spy is traditionally a sinister and evil fellow capable of any kind of rascality or nastiness. But Powers is the boy next door who grew up with an adventurous love of flying.

His wife put it with great poignancy when she said that he should not be considered as a spy at all but as a kind of scout. This has overtones of the Old West and the Indian scouts ever alert to the threat of Indian depredations. Her remark implies an innocence and even a sense of righteousness that may be widely reflected here at home.

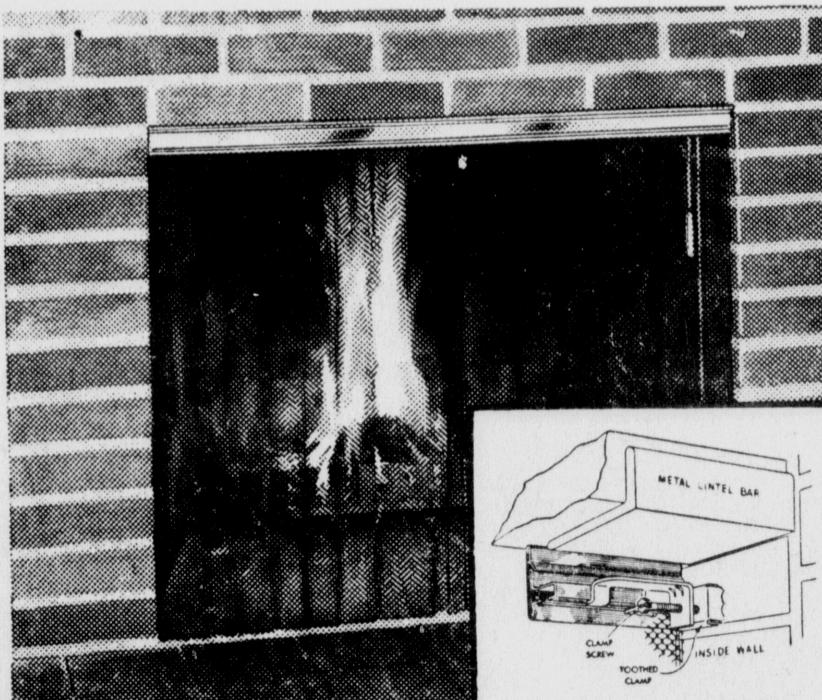

Emotions to one side, the Central Intelligence Agency has been devoting hundreds of man-hours -- skilled, expert man-hours -- to an appraisal of the U-2 disaster and the possible consequences of the trial. Powers worked for the CIA in the numerous flights that he made over the Soviet Union.

While the damage done by the U-2 episode and the confused and fumbling way in which it was handled were obvious enough, in the CIA reckoning the immediate harm to the Western alliance was relatively small. One reason was the way in which Khrushchev overplayed his hand. Yet it is here that there is the greatest concern over the trial. So far as can be determined, Powers has told just about everything he knew of the operation in which he was involved, and he has told it in a straightforward fashion. There is little factual information that he could add unless -- and this is the big unknown -- he has been subjected to some form of brainwashing. The top appraisers in the CIA have no way of knowing whether in the nearly three and a half months he has been imprisoned, this has happened.

The damage he could do, under such circumstances, is with respect to the use of bases on the territory of America's allies. A major Soviet objective in the spy trial is to contribute to the weakening of the alliance by intimidating the allies with bases from which American planes operate. Powers flew from Pakistan and his destination was a base in Norway. What he may have to say from the witness stand about operations from these and other allied bases will be of paramount interest to those who have been directing the chess game in which pilot Powers was the pawn.

The belief is that Powers will be given, instead of the death sentence, a fairly long prison term. This will keep him alive, to put it in the cold-blooded language of the intelligence business, as a bargaining counter. Conceivably, he could be exchanged for a Soviet spy at some future date.

But there is one important qualifier to this belief. If the Soviet fear of espionage, and above all of aerial photography, is as great as it seems to be, then Powers will be shot as a warning to others that they will meet a similar fate if they are caught in the act. This would be considered -- and it is by no means excluded -- as a deterrent for the future.

The Powers trial fits into the aggressive campaign of propaganda projected for the months ahead. It is being taken for granted, after the recent hints dropped in Moscow, that Khrushchev will head up the Soviet delegation to the United Nations General Assembly. He will argue the Soviet disarmament case with the vigor and vociferousness of which he is capable.

From the U.N. he will go to Cuba and perhaps also to Mexico. Against the Cuban sounding board, he will reiterate the themes of "imperialism" and "colonialism" and pledge anew Soviet assistance to the Castro regime in its struggle, as depicted by Communist propaganda, with the tyrannical giant to the north.

For Western listeners with any understanding or sophistication, this will be the old hackneyed exaggeration and falsehood. Khrushchev will again be overplaying his hand. But for less knowledgeable audiences in large parts of the world, its effect may be much greater than we here realize.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

A NEW SPACE RACE?

World politics begin to sound like the Democrats and the Republicans. What one advocates or accomplishes today is bad in the eyes of the other until the other claims it as his own. Then it is good. And so with the race in space.

Right now, or when this was written, which was several light years ago on Tuesday evening, and even by the speed of sound is already ancient, the United States has cluttered the air with retrieved and unretrieved objects, reflected its leader's voice off a hundred-foot ball a thousand miles away, and might even slow its pace down enough to win a few mundane foot races at the Olympics.

If we don't we'll point to that ball of silver racing overhead and infer that we have loftier heights to scale than high hurdles, let alone low ones. In fact, it seems that if we have any chance in the Olympics it is in space where Mr. Thomas will fly over the high jump bar and our vaulters may set new marks.

Our minds are so lofty these days that even our winningest athletes can't keep their feet on the ground.

But who knows what will happen tomorrow, or since this piece was conceived. By the time a small percentage of our readers lower their eyes sufficiently to scan this lofty tome the Russians may be racking vodka on the moon, and we, poor souls, will be stuck back here with wine from the grapes of wrath.

We then will console ourselves with the contention that ours are of a more scientific nature, loaded with intricate electronic brains, and represent an advanced civilization. Not higher, mind you, but more advanced.

And besides, anyone can landmen on the moon if he loads them with enough vodka and doesn't care much what happens to them. We want to be sure ours return safely. Not because we aren't aware of the population explosion, but because of that advanced civilization which keeps us at more refined levels.

Meanwhile, we will monkey with chimpanzees. And if we can spring a few on old moonface, the chimps, the Russians, and the vodka may start a whole new race (space race?).

At the time the rest of us arrive. And you don't hardly find those no more.

The publicized approach to the stratosphere competition seems a bit ridiculous. What most of us really want to know is the comparative strength of airborne objects that are much closer to home.

Can the Russians outshoot us with atomized weapons, or are we so strong that they will leave us alone?

The exploration of space will yield much valuable information for the betterment of our lives here below, we all hope, but we also want to be around to benefit by the scientific gains. Are we fiddling with the moon while the Russians prepare to burn Washington?

Our fervent hope is that the Russians will be deterred long enough from blasting us to provide sufficient time for them to demand more individual benefits from their own economy. The closer they come to us in this respect, the less time they will have for making weapons.

If the Soviet citizens could become as gadget crazy as Americans, their plants and scientific minds would be as occupied as ours with material nonsense and competition might descend to the level of television ratings, perhaps with a condensed version of "The Brothers Karamazov" vs. Bat Masterson.

And if this gets Khruschev on Jack Paar's show, Walter Winchell will blow the gents' room fuse and Kilgallen will be a "What's My Line" prospect.

Meanwhile, we view the upper level race with a modicum of alarm. We prefer to know if this is a true test of our fire or our liar power. The poor layman sits in the middle, watches the fireworks, and hopes none of them will land in the crowd. He hasn't any insurance that will cover this one.

In short, are we preparing to shoot the moon . . . or each other?

Matter of Fact . . .

THE CATHOLIC VOTE

NEW YORK

The drama of the Catholic voters and Sen. John F. Kennedy is likely to be more complicated than most people suppose, and the outcome may be less satisfactory for the Democratic nominee than most people now expect.

This is the unavoidable conclusion, at any rate, which emerges from the results of a long and intensive round of doorbell-ringing in the Parkchester Apartments. These vast, rather pleasing red brick blocks of lower-middle income housing are a good hunting ground for anyone interested in the voting attitudes of special groups.

Something like 12,000 families inhabit this island in the wilds of the Bronx created by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. The rule is that each tenant's name is on his door. The name itself will usually indicate the group that the tenant belongs to. Thus you can get any sort of sample you want, simply by ringing doorbells with the right labels above them.

As previously reported, the trends among New York state's Jewish voters were tested in the Rosedale development in White Plains, with the able help of Oliver Quayle of Louis Harris Associates. At the Parkchester, therefore, Louis Harris and this reporter concentrated on doorbells with what looked like Catholic labels, with such success that fifty-nine Catholic voters were included in our sample.

This very large and representative sample, balanced in its racial origin, was particularly interesting for a special reason. It is no help to Sen. Kennedy, of course, to win the support of Catholics who are already loyal Democrats. For Kennedy, and for Vice President Nixon too, the vital question is whether Kennedy can win large numbers of Republican-voting Catholics back into the Democratic fold.

The great majority of these Parkchester people were in the Republican-voting Catholic group. Most of them, to be sure, still retain their Democratic registration, and most of them no doubt still vote Democratic in the city elections.

Yet a fair number of them had not cast a Democratic vote in a national election since 1940. Still more had been voting Republican since the war. And in 1956, no less than forty-eight of the fifty-nine had supported Dwight D. Eisenhower, against only eight who had voted for Adlai E. Stevenson, and three who had not voted that year.

In other words, close to five out of six of these firemen and policemen and pharmacists and small rather cheering for the Democrats. But as noted above, the behavior of the former Eisenhower voters is the point of real interest. Thus far, not quite 20 per cent of them have been drawn back into the Democratic column by Kennedy's pull. The same pull must be credited with putting an additional 20 per cent in the "don't know" column, and these may perhaps go all the way in the end.

In fact the ultimate decisions of these "don't know" voters will determine whether Kennedy's showing in the Catholic voting group is only fair or very good indeed. Furthermore, it will not be easy for Kennedy to convince these undecided Catholic voters, whose basic political tendency is deeply conservative.

We found several of the Parkchester Catholics who had been for Kennedy momentarily, and had then changed their minds because they feared he would "make Adlai Stevenson Secretary of State and give the country away." The same hostility to the Stevenson-type Democrats appeared in the crucial "don't know" group.

Offsetting this, however, there was the same widespread, passionate resentment of America's "loss of prestige" or "loss of respect" abroad, which we also found in Jewish Rosedale. If Kennedy can just give the impression that he knows how to deal with Fidel Castro, he will solve all his problems at the Parkchester Apartments.

CO-EXISTENCE AND THE CONGO

By Walter Lippmann

The task of the U.N. in the Congo is entirely without precedent and it is inordinately difficult. Indeed, the problems are insoluble unless the governments which make up the U.N. can rise above their normal behavior to a much higher level of will. The diplomatic leadership of Mr. Hammarskjold, which has been brilliant, depends at bottom on the educational principle that if you expect a lot, men will try to live up to it.

The indispensable condition of success is that the great powers should realize that each of them has a vital interest in the mission of the U.N. This is a case where the principle of unanimity, which is imbedded in the Charter, is necessary. The great powers must do very few trained leaders, administrators, and technicians. Belgium granted them independence without having prepared them for it. And the problem of the Congo -- assuming that great power intervention and civil war are both avoided -- is how to fill this vacuum.

I have heard it estimated that to provide officers for the army and the police, administrators, and technicians for the central and provincial governments and for the utilities and industries, about 30,000 trained people are needed. These trained people exist. They are the Belgians who have run the Congo, and it is fair to say that they are for the present irreplaceable. Until the Congolese can be educated and trained, there are not 30,000 French-speaking civil servants and technicians and doctors available in the world to go to the Congo.

This will mean that an extremely delicate problem lies ahead. How, without the restoration of Belgian political or military power in the Congo, can the trained Belgians be persuaded to stay, or if they have left, to return? How can the other African nations and the Soviet and Chinese governments be induced to agree to the use of the virtually irreplaceable Belgians?

There are not questions that the State Department can or should try to answer in the form of public pronouncement. The problem is in the United Nations and for once our role is, thanks be, not that of the leader who must fix it all but of the loyal supporters.

The difficulties of the Congo problem are increased by the fact that communication has broken down between Moscow and Washington. If it were possible to talk with Mr. K., instead of trading insults with him, it would be useful to be able to say to him that what the U.N. is doing in the Congo is a dramatic example of how co-existence can be made to work. The example might be applied elsewhere.

ARROWS OFF FOR AREA POW WOW

Warren county members of the Order of the Arrow will be well represented at Camp Coffman this week end when the area meeting of the Order is attended by approximately 500 members. They will take part in the three-day program, including the big event Saturday evening when the Indian dance competition is held. This starts at 6:30, with eight lodges represented, and is open to the public.

Lodges check in after 4:00 p.m. on Friday. The week end program will include round-the-clock swapping in lighted tents; discussion groups on camping, public relations, activities, service, adult participation, and scouting-order of the Arrow relationships; and Indian dancing. Ed Choby, nationally known woodcarver, will be on hand with his neckerchief slides and carving blocks.

The Order of the Arrow is a National Brotherhood of Scout Campers who best exemplify the Scout Oath and Law. It is dedicated to developing and maintaining good camping conditions and spirit; to promoting scout camping and to crystalizing the Scout habit of helpfulness into a life purpose of leadership in cheerful service to others.

PROBATION FUND PROGRESS

The Rotarians learned at their weekly meeting that the annual donations to the Warren County Probation Association need beefing up. Judge Alexander C. Flick reported that $2,915.62 has been received. The annual goal is $5,000.

COUNTY MONEY INVESTED; CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Thursday morning the Warren County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously to invest $24,860.97 of Liquid Fuels money in three-month United States Treasury bills. The securities, which will mature on November 17, 1960, will return 2.10 per cent in interest to the county.

Last week the Commissioners made a $50,000 investment in long-term notes, also from the Liquid Fuels account.

The Commissioners also will request the Warren County Historical Society to prepare a centennial celebration in recognition of the Rouse Fund which was established in 1861.

ARMY GETS THEM

Four Warren county boys will report for induction at New Cumberland next Wednesday. The registrants are Robert E. Benner, of Tidioute; John P. Fisher and Kenneth A. Hart, of Warren, and Fenton E. Hazeltine Jr., of Pittsfield R. D.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN LAUNCH MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

The Warren County Council of Republican Women has launched its first membership drive via the mailing system. All registered Republican women will be contacted through the drive at regularly spaced intervals during the next two months prior to the November 8 General Election.

Mrs. Gurney Ball, who is serving as membership chairman for the group, urges prompt return of dues as soon as the letters are received, and it is anticipated by her that all letters will be in the mail no later than September 15.

On Thursday, August 25, the Council will hold a tureen supper at Blomquist's Island in North Warren. The affair will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Struthers Wells Has $16 Million Backlog

Struthers Wells Corporation, heavy equipment manufacturer and defense contractor, is maintaining an order backlog of more than $16 million H. W. Conarro, president, said today.

Mr. Conarro, in his mid-year report to stockholders, disclosed that new business booked during June totaled approximately $1,600,000. He gave these comparisons:

-- The present backlog of $16 million compared with $9 million on June 30, 1959.

-- Profits in June, 1960, totaled $96,000, as against $7,800 for the same month a year ago.

-- Shipments in June, 1960, were valued at $1,954,000, compared with $1,369,000 the year before.

-- Shipments in July, 1960, were also above those of a year ago and shipments in August will show at least a 50 per cent improvement over those for the same month in 1959.

The president expressed the hope that, by the end of the fiscal year, Struthers Wells would be able to make up for the omission of the regular 25-cent dividend on its common stock for each of the last three quarters.

Mr. Conarro said the company planned to expand its research and development particularly in the saline water conversion field. "Consideration is being given to the formation of a new fully-owned subsidiary for this purpose," he disclosed.

tax refund on cars purchased out of the state which are traded-in in Pennsylvania. Heretofore, no allowance on trade-ins was permitted on a vehicle purchased out-of-state. Many Pennsylvanians have purchased cars in other states and paid sales tax on the full purchase price, but now they are entitled to a refund of a portion of this money.

Requests for refunds should be addressed to Mr. Frank J. Kozicki, Credit Refund Unit, Bureau of Sales and Use Tax, 1846 Brookwood St., Harrisburg. The statement should be notarized, explaining in detail the circumstances, and should include the amount of the claim, the Pennsylvania title number, the legal reason for claim, the date of tax payment, and a true copy of the invoice that was received at the time of purchase of the car. The number of the Pennsylvania Certificate of Title should also be mentioned.

INSURANCE AWARD

The State Farm Mutual Insurance Company recently held a meeting in Allentown, Pennsylvania, and F. Walter Ahlquist, the local agent, has returned to Warren with three awards. They include the Career Club Award, given for achieving 1350 points for selling automobile and life insurance policies; the Convention Club Award, which is based on outstanding production of auto, life, and fire insurance sales; and the Founders Month Award for production for the month of June in the central Pennsylvania territory.

TOOLMAKING GRADUATE

George A. Wright, Findley Lake, N.Y., recently received his diploma from the International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Pennsylvania, following completion of his course in Machine Shop Practice and Toolmaking. The announcement was made by area representative L. E. Johnsen of ICS.

Mr. Wright is employed as a trainee with Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing, of Corry, and his correspondence course served as related instruction for his training program.

A LAWN SOCIAL . . . will be given for the benefit of Catholic Youth Council next Saturday and Sunday, August 27 and 28. Tickets are 25¢ per person.

There will be games for young and old, hot dogs, meatballs, popcorn which may be bought at the refreshment booth; ice cream and cake are included in the price of the ticket.

Tickets are available from CYC members, or from adult advisers. In case of rain the social will be advanced one night, from Saturday to Sunday (in this case the dates would then be, Sunday, August 28 and Monday, August 29).

 "COLDEN FLEECING" . . . is the current attraction at the Peninsula Playhouse. Curtain time for the wholesome family comedy is 8:45 p. m.

The plot of the play, which was authored by Lorenzo Semple, Jr., concerns a scheme of three Naval men to beat the roulette-wheel casino in Venice by using the electronic computer on their ship in the harbor to devise an infallible system.

Jay Sheffield portrays Lt. Howard, the leader of the trio; Barbara Babcock will play Julie, the girl he falls in love with; the civilian math whiz, Eldridge, is played by Ronald Pitts; Ensign Gilliam a square fresh from the Naval Academy is done by actor Michael Montel; Warren Munson is the outraged Admiral and L. Newell Tarrant gives a good interpretation of the fleet's dumbest signalman -- a role that particularly delighted the New York audiences.

RECENTLY RETURNED FROM SINGAPORE . . . and the Far East, Miss Ethel Young of Russell, will present an evening of colored slides with running commentary on her two year term of mission service in Asia. She will also show costumes worn by the various Asiatic peoples.

Miss Young's very interesting program will be presented in the Eisenhower High School auditorium, Tuesday evening, August 23, at 8 o'clock. There will be no admission charge.

BALL-JOINT CHECK

The ball-joints on your car are probably loose if you have:

- ✓ Excessive or uneven tire wear
- ✓ High- or low-speed shimmy
- ✓ Erratic, noisy steering

Let us jack up your car's front-end and make the "Leverage Test" for looseness. If ball-joints are wobbly, you need MOOG Adjustable Ball-Joints. Actually pay for themselves in longer tire life!

Broken Tail
And Heart

HARRISBURG -- The following post card, addressed to the Department of Forests and Waters, was received this week in Harrisburg:

"Dear Sirs:

"While traveling from Bedford, Pa. and Salamanca, N. Y., last night we changed drivers and somehow our pet dog, "Zip", got out. His lower small teeth are missing and he has a lump on his black tail with a white tip. He is a small, black and white terrier and we are heartbroken. A liberal reward for anyone who can help us find him.

THE OLD DAYS

One thought likely to occur to some of the more thoughtful small fry watching "Silents, Please," ABC-TV's program of wonderful old silent movies, is that nothing has changed very much in mass entertainment. The first of the series was Rudolph Valentino's last picture "The Son of the Sheik" and it culminated, as all good Westerns still do, with a fight in a saloon.

Actually, there were rather large differences in saloon fights in those days. In the first place it was an Arabian saloon which gave the place glamor. But underneath the bur-nooses were subtler differences. They fought with greater bravado. Greater dash and much more gallantry. There was none of the snivelling neuroticism that distinguishes your modern gun fighter. Valentino, in short, was not fighting to prove his masculinity or other inner-directed reasons; he was fighting to rescue Vilma Banky from the villain which is as it should be.

I suppose the younger generation of small fry will look at these old classics strictly for laughs but perhaps there is a glimmer of the old spark left in them. Valentino is still a marvelously handsome and vital human being, if a slightly ridiculous actor. The narrowed eyelids to indicate deep thought or anger or both were, after all, not his fault. They were cliches of the day and all actors used them at the risk of being denounced as a cad. I must say that the men of that day (the twenties) stand the test of time better than the woman.

Vilma Banky was the very last word in passion in her day. She not only exuded it, she aroused it. Well, she still exudes it. But I hardly think she arouses it in any breast this side of the Middle East. It is my prediction that the other great male stars of the old days will be even less touched by time than Valentino (who was a bit of a figure of fun even in his own day).

I know it dates me but I must confess I saw most of these movies when I was a kid and I look forward eagerly to seeing them again. Naturally, they've diminished. The scale of everything from the passions to the sets seemed much larger than we were children. I remember going to see "The Three Musketeers" with Douglas Fairbanks Sr. at the Museum of Modern Art some years ago and being surprised and disappointed that the sets were so little.

Douglas Fairbanks Sr. is one of the old silent stars promised us in this series, although "The Black Pirate" is not his greatest picture. I'm eager to see if any of the old Fairbanks magic will run off on my children as it certainly rubbed off in my generation. Is there anything in a child's world today at all comparable to the elder Fairbanks? The closest thing to a national mania among children today seems to be Jerry Lewis who is hardly a hero in the Fairbanks

The second of the "Silents, Please" series was Buster Keaton's "The General" which I recall as one of the funniest movies I ever saw. This is a great Civil War movie which is just one long chase in a train. The original was full of marvelous mechanical gags with the train, cannons, switches, bridges -- beautifully timed and filmed. A good deal has been lost in cutting this down to half an hour and the humor is flattened out by narration which is totally unnecessary. To tell the audience "This is one of the most beautifully timed sequences in all motion picture comedy" is only to put a man on his guard, a sure way to prevent him from laughing, rather than spur him on to laughter.

From time to time, the narrator even commits that deadly sin of telling you the plot in advance -- for which he ought to be jailed. But even cut down, analyzed, and explained, Buster Keaton is a very funny man whose deadpan comedy has not been equalled and whose style is still borrowed by other comics.

In this summer of dull reruns "Silents, Please" is something to look forward to every Thursday night (ABC-TV 10:30 p.m. EDT). Thursday night, the silent is another of the great emotional experiences of my youth, John Barrymore in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." With the great lover will be Nita Naldi whom I once considered the Bee's Knees (that's the way we used to talk, Junior), and Louis Wolheim who was in many of Barrymore's old silent pictures.

Speaking of old pictures, I awoke for some unaccountable reason at 3:00 a.m. the other night and discovered a member of my household looking at an ancient picture with Jimmy Cagney and Ann Sheridan in it. Curious to know how many other TV channels were playing grind house at that unlikely hour, I flipped from channel to channel and found three more movies. Your choice of four movies at three in the morning! Am I alone in thinking that three in the morning is for sleeping?

Indian Lore Learned Through Field Trip

By Tom Curtin

The heavy clouds emerging over the area of the Seneca Reservation last Sunday, were not smoke signals, but were clouds of dust from the thirty-two car caravan that comprised the Warren County Historical Society's tour of the Indian lands.

The tour, which was guided by the very able M. H. Deardorff, whose knowledge of the Senecas is unmatched, took in four places most commonly associated with four of the most important Seneca figures.

The first of these places was the Cornplanter Grant which is in Pennsylvania, and was granted to the Indians about 1797. This was the former home of John O'Bail or Chief Cornplanter, and also the location of a church built in 1885, and a school built in 1903, that are still standing. At this point Mr. Deardorff enlightened the group concerning religious and educational history of that area.

Next the group proceeded to Cold Springs, New York, or Oldtown, where they were the guests of Robert Crouse and his family. Here Mr. Deardorff spoke of Peter Crouse, a white, who was captured by the Senecas during the Revolution period. Later he married into the tribe, and by 1928 he had 550 descendants of whom Robert Crouse is one.

The highlight of the tour came when the ceremonial Longhouse was opened to the group and Mr. Deardorff introduced Albert and Geneva Jones who are two very important tribal figures. Mr. Deardorff told the history of Handsome Lake, Cornplanter's half-brother, and how he had visions and started the moralist religion that is employed by some of the Indians. Then Mr. Jones addressed the group in the Seneca dialect. His message was translated by his wife.

Although Handsome Lake was the spiritual leader of his group, his sayings were never copied down, and since his time it has been the custom for a member of the tribe to learn, beginning in his childhood, the sayings that take four days to recite. This important position is held by Mr. Jones.

The final phase of the tour came when the group visited Tunesassa (here are fine sands) or better known as the Quaker Area. This area is most commonly associated with Governor Blacksnake, a nephew of Cornplanter, the fourth and last great chief of the Senecas who was very close to the Quakers who resided on the Reservation.

Before the tour ended, Mr. Deardorff made an important revelation to the group about another nephew of Cornplanter, named Guyasuta. Although he was an important figure in the tribe, the location of his grave has been a subject of great controversy for a great many years. In Venango County there is a monument on the spot where he is supposedly buried. And in Pittsburgh there are some bones on exhibition that are allegedly the remains of Guyasuta.

But according to Mr. Deardorff these are both misrepresentations for he has in his possession a copy of a letter written by Chief Cornplanter to George Washington in 1794 that states that Guyasuta was with Cornplanter, but was dying. Later a journal kept by a man named Adlane in the year 1794 revealed that Guyasuta had died in February of that year. Through other information the location of his grave has been placed at about a quarter of a mile from Cornplanter's grave.

INDIAN CHURCH on the Cornplanter Indian Grant where thirty-six cars of the Warren County Historical Society paused during last Sunday's field trip.

BURIED HERE is Guyasuta, uncle of Cornplanter, and about whom there has been a difference of opinion concerning where his bones are interred. One source claims the grave is in Venango county. Another says that bones on exhibition in Pittsburgh are Guyasuta's. But a letter from Cornplanter to George Washington pins the location to the reservation, where he explained that Guyasuta had died in Cornplanter's home. Mr. Deardorff tells the Guyasuta story to the group.

In Cancer's War

PROBLEMS and PROGRESS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Cancer research is a grim intellectual game for high stakes — 260,000 Americans are destined to die of the disease this year. The American Cancer Society is showing in this series of problems how the game is played by our finest minds.

THE ODDS IN LUNG CANCER

About 25 per cent of the patients with lung cancer who can and do have the cancerous lung removed will live five or more years — and probably be cured. Why are they saved? Why do the other 75 per cent die of cancer?

Three University of Pennsylvania chest surgeons searched the records for a hint as to whether or not there was an advantage to more extensive operation than is now used and why some are cured of lung cancer while others, with seemingly identical conditions, die of cancer — usually within a year or two.

Of 344 patients who were treated more than five years ago: 192 chests were opened up and explored; 116 had the cancerous lung removed; 31 of the 116 survived five years or longer.

The surgeons found two significant facts: In cases where the cancer had invaded and destroyed blood vessels, only six per cent survived; 75 per cent survived when the cancer had not invaded blood vessels.

The surgeons in this study were Drs. Julian Johnson, Charles K. Kirby and William S. Blakemore.

VITAMIN A AND CANCER

Vitamin A is essential for healthy skin and the tissues lining many organs. In human beings and animals lacking Vitamin A, these tissues change and overgrow. Moreover, the thyroid gland, whose hormone transforms dietary carotene to vitamin A, also shows abnormal growths and mal-function. Can vitamin A deficiency contribute to cancer?

Dr. J. H. Van Dyke of Hahnemann Medical College withdrew carotene and vitamin A from the diet of normal rats. Following this, certain tissue in the thymus gland, which produces and stores white blood cells, became very rough and overgrown. This was especially true when the scientist gave sex hormones to the rats on the deficient diet.

In addition, the thyroid gland, trying vainly to produce hormones which transform carotene into vitamin A, often became goitrous.

Dr. Van Dyke now is injecting a cancer-causing chemical directly into the thymus of normal rats and vitamin A-deficient rats to learn whether "new-growths" in deficient animals will turn into outright thyroid cancers.

He also is using a goiter-inducing drug in another series of vitamin A-deficient animals to see whether these conditions may be related to or ultimately cause cancers of the thyroid gland.

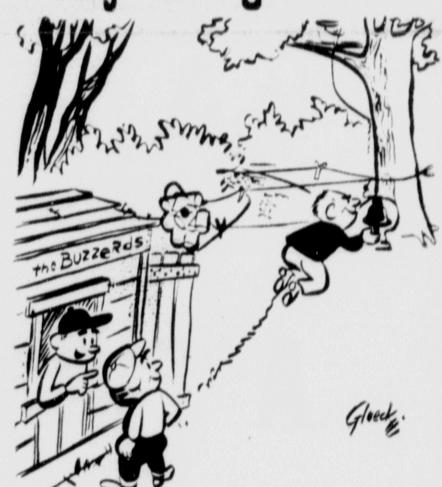

MATERNAL AGE AND CANCER
Does the age of the mother when her offspring are born increase or decrease the offspring's risk of developing cancer? Who runs the greater risk of cancer — the older or younger members of a family?

About 90 per cent of the mice born to a young mouse mother come down with a virus-caused breast cancer. Only 30 to 50 per cent of the litters born to the same mouse when she is old develop breast cancer.

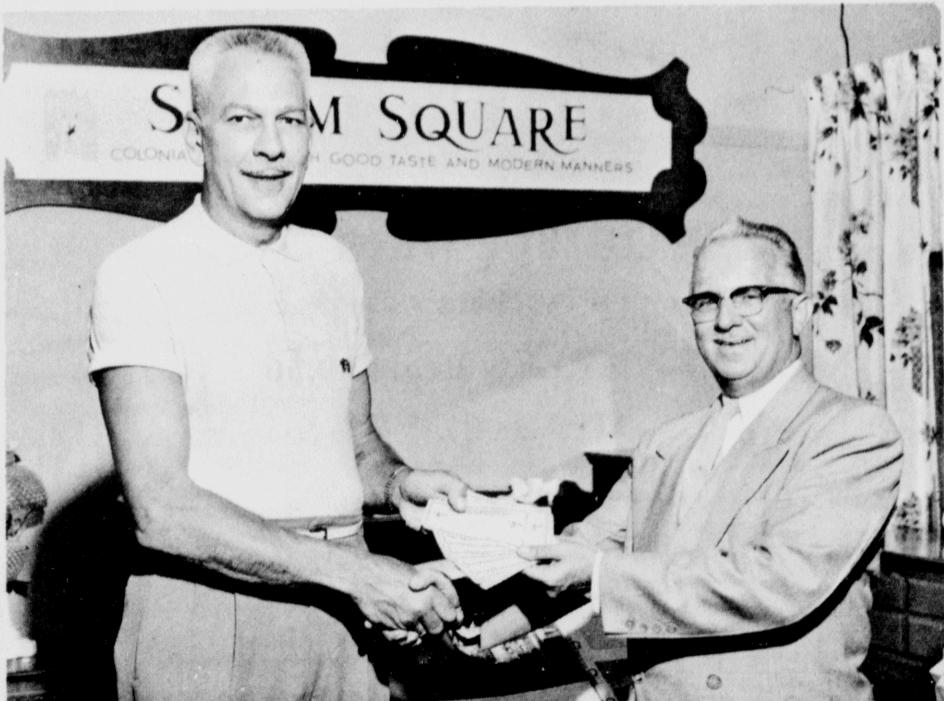

Dr. Leon Dmochowski of the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital, set out to learn whether he could transfer cancer resistance from old mother mice to young mother mice.

The scientist surgically sewed together old and young mouse mothers so that, like Siamese twins, they shared the same bloodstream. The union was good for the young mice — they acquired the old mouse's resistance to virus-induced breast cancer. And it didn't hurt the old mice — they remained cancer resistant. Something in the blood produced cancer resistance — but not susceptibility.

NOT OFTEN ENOUGH

Walter Lippmann will make an annual appearance on CBS according to an announcement made following his August 11 telecast which was a repeat program. It was first aired on July 7. In the program, Mr. Lippmann confided his views on leadership, contemporary and past leaders, and current problems and issues on the national and international scene, to Howard K. Smith and several million viewers.

Mr. Lippmann is widely acclaimed as a news analyst, author and newspaper columnist (the Observer has him).

His announced annual appearance on the CBS Reports series is not nearly often enough for a man of his stature and we vote for more frequent sessions with Mr. Lippmann.

SOMETHING NEW ADDED

Have you noticed that Walter Cronkite, who has been subbing for Douglas Edwards on the CBS News reports, has scrapped his scripts and uses only brief notes plus his knack for ad-libbing?

This seems to be a trend in CBS quarters which recently took a drubbing in ratings following NBC's (Huntley-Brinkley) brilliant coverage of the conventions and other news events.

Cronkite is rightly being given the chance to exhibit his flair for the fast quip but also the entire CBS news production technique is being overhauled in order to meet the stiff competition from NBC.

NEW TV AWARDS TO HAVE INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR

Prince Rainier III, of Monaco (and Grace Kelly) has announced that he will present special television awards covering at least six but not more than nine categories.

The awards, judged on international competition, will be presented Nov. 26 in the Monte Carlo Opera House.

ABOUT PROGRAMS

GOLDEN CHILD, an original 90-minute Christmas opera by Paul Engle and Philip Bezanson, will have its television premier on NBC's Hallmark Hall of Fame colorcast Friday, Dec. 16, 8:30-10 p.m. Patricia Neway and Jerome Hines will sing the lead roles. This marks Hallmark's second original Christmas opera, the first being Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

ANATOMY OF HATE is an hour-long documentary drama attempting to analyze hatred, prejudice and extremist activities. Howard K. Smith will narrate the show for CBS at a date to be announced.

A THURBER CARNIVAL may be a 90-minute TV adaptation of the Broadway play if CBS can successfully consummate negotiations with the producers. Much depends on its Broadway run and scheduled road tour. James Stewart wants to star in it and CBS hopes to air it in March, 1961.

FOUR SPECIAL DRAMAS written originally for television production are being considered by ABC. This is a new slant for the third network which has relied heavily on Hollywood for canned fare.

ARTHUR GODFREY will make a guest appearance on Alfred Funt's Candid Camera debut on CBS, Oct. 2 at 10 p.m.

THE ACCEPTANCE OF CHRIST is a new Project 20 program to be telecast by NBC on Wednesday, Dec. 21, 8:30 p.m.

IRELAND and SWEDEN will be treated in two-part studies on the CBS 20th Century series during the coming season. The documentary reports will deal with a modern picture of the two countries.

WISDOM series has a schedule of new programs but the dates have not been announced. Subjects whose conversations have been recorded include Andres Segovia, Nadia Boulanger, W. Somerset Maugham, David Low, Clement Attlee and Dr. Paul Dudley White.

RIVAK, THE BARBARIAN is a full-hour special which NBC will present as a prologue to its new hour-long series "The Barbarians." Starring Jack Palance, the stories are based on F. Van Wyck Mason's novel of love and slavery during the Punic Wars. The opening program will be televised Tuesday, Sept. 20, 10-11 p.m.

BELL TELEPHONE HOUR premieres for the season on Friday, Sept. 30, on NBC, with a full hour colorcast of music and dance featuring Van Cliburn, Benny Goodman, Sally Ann Howes, Howard Keel, Melissa Hayden and Andre Eglevsky. Keel will be program host, sub-title of the program will be "Holiday In Music."

BUY BETTER-THAN-EVER U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

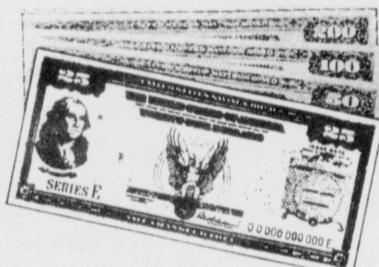

A new 50-star flag now flies over the capitols of 50 states—symbol of a new America that's bigger and stronger than ever before. And there's a better-than-ever U.S. Savings Bond, too, to help keep our new America strong.

U.S. Savings Bonds are now better in two ways:

1. They mature 14 months faster than before. In E Bonds $18.75 now becomes $25 in just 7 years, 9 months.
2. They continue to earn interest after maturity. If you hold your bonds for 17 years, 9 months, you get $1.93 back for $1 you put in.

Other advantages of U.S. Savings Bonds

- You can save automatically with the Payroll Savings Plan.
- You invest without risk under a U.S. Government guarantee.
- Your money can't be lost or stolen.
- You can get your money, with interest, anytime you want it.
- You save more than money—you're helping your Government pay for peace.

City Hot Stove All-Star Games Tomorrow At 1

Tomorrow afternoon, starting at 1 p.m., the Warren Kiwanis Club is presenting the City Hot Stove League All-Star games for the benefit of the Kiwanis' and Hot Stove's welfare funds. At 1 p.m. the eastern and western bantam and cadet league All-Stars will take the fields on War Memorial park, and will be followed by the intermediate All-Stars at 2:30 p.m., the midget All-Stars at 2:30 p.m., and the junior loop stars at 5 p.m.

Presidents Robert Johnson, of the Hot Stove organization, and Robert Anstadt, of the Kiwanis Club, announce that prizes will be awarded to members of the audience at 1:30 p.m., 3 p.m., and 5 p.m., and that all persons holding winning tickets must be present at the time of the drawing.

Managers of the various All-Star squads are: bantam eastern, Ben Taylor and Gus Nelson; bantam western, Danny Lord; cadet eastern, Fred Rydholm; cadet western, Dick Chapel; intermediate eastern, Bill Lord and Bill Lundahl; intermediate western, Joe Muscaro and Angelo Zingone; junior team one, John Colvin and Chuckie Still; junior team two, Harry Wooster and Denny Buerkle. The managers for the midget All-Star nines were not available at press time.

SPEICHER THROWS THIRD CONSECUTIVE SHUTOUT

Bud Speicher hurled his third consecutive shutout in softball action last evening on the West Side diamond as the Soda Mineral forces of Tony Bonavita gained a playoff berth in the City Softball circuit. Betts and the West Side Merchants will meet Monday at 6:15 p.m. to decide which one will go against Soda for the title in a best-of-five series which is slated to start Tuesday.

Speicher, by blanking Bluebird Bus of Olean Saturday and the 400 Block twice this week, has pitched twenty-one innings of scoreless ball. Last evening he gave up two singles, back-to-back hits by Ray Kane and John Mazzuca in the fourth inning, and fanned nine men to chalk up the win.

Soda tallied three times in the top of the sixth, the only scoring that was done during the game. Dick Koebley led off with a single, and Jack White's attempted sacrifice also went for a base hit. Bill Massa was then hit by a pitched ball to load the bases. Speicher drove in Koebley and White with a single over second base, Massa stopping at second on the hit. The Soda second-sacker was enabled to score on the next play when Boone Sturdevant threw the ball into left field on Dick White's sacrifice try.

MERCHANTS SURPRISE BETTS WITH 7 TO 6 TRIUMPH

The West Side Merchants have knotted their playoff series with the Betts Black Knights at one game apiece by virtue of a 7 to 6 upset Wednesday evening on the West Side diamond. The Betts nine took the first game of the set Monday with a 5 to 3 victory. On Monday of next week the two teams will meet in the "rubber" match of the playoffs to decide which entry will face the Soda Mineral-400 Block winner.

Wednesday night's game was a see-saw affair which saw the Merchants opening lead of 3 to 0 erased in the last of the second when the Knights exploded for four big tallies to take a 5 to 3 lead. The Merchants fought back with one in the fourth and two in the fifth for a slim one-run edge, but Betts came sailing back in the last half of that frame to knot the score again at six runs apiece.

The deciding run was scored in the first half of the sixth stanza when Steve Lindquist led off with a walk. Kurt Lester then smashed a hard grounder to short, and the ball scooted away, Lindquist racing home on the play.

Jack Karkosky led the West Siders at the plate with three hits in four times at bat, and Hud Berdine garnered two safeties in the same number of bats for Betts. The West Side had eight hits off John Berdine, the loser, and the Betts team managed one less off winning moundsman, Jim Tinelli.

BANTAM PLAYOFF

Wednesday evening on Lacy field the Dairy Queen edged the Warren Observer, 5 to 4, in an elimination game for first place in the eastern division of the Hot Stove bantam league. Albaugh was the winning pitcher, and Doug Sorenson the loser. The Observer scored four times in the top of the first inning, but the DQ charged back with three. Then the victors scored twice in the third stanza to seal away the triumph.

Sorenson had a double and a homer for the losers, Lyle also smashing two-bagger. Albaugh had a double, Young a triple, and Valone a homer for the winning combine.

FINLEY CHANGES POSTS

Dick Finley, former Warren high athlete, was back in town visiting recently, and his many friends were surprised to learn that he has changed schools in Pennsylvania. Dick had been assistant principal and head basketball coach at East Forest high school of the Allegheny Mountain League, but he now has assumed other duties at Athens, Pa.

At Athens Dick will act as supervising principal and coach. He became very enthused when he learned about the recreation program in Athens, for it includes summertime basketball on lighted courts.

Looking into the future, Dick stated that he believes the Athens court team may go all the way in Class B this season.

ERIE COACHING CHANGES

As some football fans may have heard Lou Tulio of Erie Academy has taken over as head school administrator, which means he will no longer be at the helm of the Academy gridiron eleven. He has been replaced by Tony Verga, who served as assistant coach under him.

Informed sources state the Erie Academy, which will appear in Warren on Oct. 15 against the Blue and White, and Erie Cathedral Prep will be the teams to beat in the Big Seven Conference this coming season. Academy is supposed to have one of its strongest football teams in years.

A sidelight on the Erie sports trail is the talk of a merger between the Harborcreek, Wesleyville, and Lawrence Park schools. Schools have been producing strong basketball, football, and track teams in individual roles, and should they have been producing strong basketball, football, and track teams in individual roles, and should they combine the impact will be felt by many teams in the area.

SWIMMING SPLATTER

The CVCC swimming team has placed two members of its crew on the Country Club All-Star team in Pennsylvania. Last weekend Jackie Doebler and Chip Lucia earned places on the squad with their efforts in the state country club meet held near Pittsburgh. Jackie qualified for the girls amateur 30-yard free-style with a time of 19.3 seconds, and her mark of 19.4 merited a fourth-place position. Chip stroked the 30-yard boys freestyle in 15.3 seconds to qualify and finished with 15.4 seconds, a fifth place.

Others from Warren who made the trip to Pittsburgh were Maty Lauffenberger, Pete O'Connor, Syke Kopf, and Coach Pat Madden. Kopf took an eighth in the day's point still well up in the point standings. Mary Thorpe of Sugar Grove is

The local thirteen and over freestyle relay team, composed of Lucia, O'Connor, Dave Dahler, and Jerry Lauffenberger.

The team was without the services of Miss Doebler as she took sick and did not make the trip.

Sunday the Kahkwa Country Club of Erie visits the local pool with the dual meet slated for 2 p.m., and on Monday the CVCC mermen will journey to the Lake Shore Club. On August 28 all the local swimmers will participate in the interclub swimming championships.

50-LAP BURCH-RUTH RACE AT STATELINE SPEEDWAY

A field of 25 or more is expected to be on hand tomorrow night for the 50 - lap Burch - Ruth Memorial race for late model stocks at Stateline Speedway just north of Sugar Grove.

The long grind gives an added advantage to the top machines, who start toward the rear but have more time to pick their way through the heavy traffic. Hyle Russell of Kane is the current point leader, a safe 200 points ahead of Squirt Johns of Brockway, winner of last week's feature.

Two Warren County chauffeurs are still well up in the point standings. Mary Thorpe of Sugar Grove is 10th and Jim Scott of Grand Valley

CARLSONS TAKE LEAD IN INDUSTRIAL GOLF LOOP

The Carlson's Motors team has taken a one-point edge over the Simonsen's Insurance squad, 64-1/2 to 63-1/2, with one week remaining on the regular schedule. Following the top two teams are Econowash Laundry with 60-1/2 points, Penn Glade Hotel with 58-1/2, and the New Yorkers with 50-1/2. Jack Clarkson, Bob Johnson, and Ross Fisher tied for the week's low scores with 37's. Leo Salerno, Johnny Smith, Joey Brindis, Joe Scalise, and Vince Toscano carded 38's, while Paul Rosenquist, Tink

Wolfe, and Tony Bevevino fired 39's.

Leo Salerno and Jack Clarkson recorded eagles during the week's activity. Both of them scored the gems on the par five number one hole.

The scores for the week were: Simonsen's 7-1/2, Riverside Lanes 2-1/2; Econowash 10, New Yorkers 2; National Forge 6, Blueberry 4; Sylvania Two 7-1/2, Warren Observer 2-1/2; Solar 7-1/2, Sylvania One 2-1/2; Struthers Wells 7-1/2, Penn Glade Hotel 4-1/2; Belz-Larson 10, Erickson's 2; Keystone Powerfuel 8, Loranger's 4; Carlson's 10, Cunningham's 2.

KINZUA OPEN

This Sunday the Kinzua Valley Golf Course will be the scene of the Kinzua Open tournament, all amateurs in the area being eligible for the event. Joey Brindis and Chink Collins, winners in the first and second flights of last year, will be on hand to defend their titles.

The four-flight tourney will commence sharply at 8 a.m., and dinner will be served for the participants from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. The fee for the day's festivities is five dollars.

As of Thursday evening forty-five persons had registered to enter the 18-hole open tournament.

SEMI-FINALS

The championship flight of the Conewango Valley Country Club annual golf tournament has reached the semi-final stage, with one match half played. Tim Creal is leading Ross Kremer, five up, at the end of eighteen. Ross Fisher and the defending champion, Skip Modine, will go their full thirty-six on Saturday.

MEN'S DAY

John Carter had a 38 and Dick Krapfel sank 12 putts to lead the first flight in the weekly men's day tournament.

Other winners were:

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Tommy Holmes

(While Red Smith is on vacation, his column is being written by Tommy Holmes of the sports staff of the New York Herald Tribune.)

BASEBALL FOREVER!

The other night at the Old Timers dinner Ford Frick, as is his invariable custom, praised baseball as a great game and dwelt glowingly upon the hold it had upon the American public. The applause was enthusiastic and from the brass sections there came murmurs of "How true, how true."

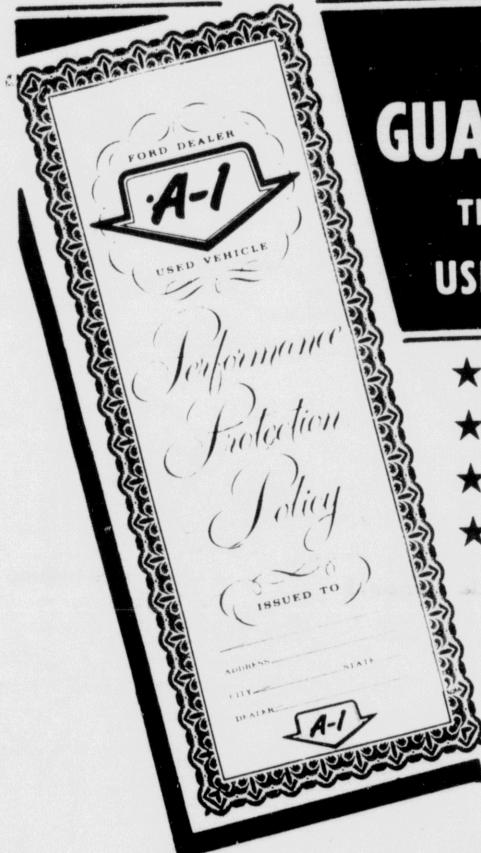

This is written not in criticism of the baseball commissioner, who is a sincere man and moreover is eminently correct. Baseball is a great game but it seems too bad that some of the men who run it lack the courage of their convictions.

Why, for instance, is it deemed necessary, in a city like New York, to profane every Sabbath with an almost interminable doubleheader? Why, if the appeal of the game is so great, must quality of performance be sacrificed for quantity of production?

It says here that the judgement and good taste of the New York fan has been grossly underestimated. Also that the appeal of the Sunday doubleheader is measured less accurately by the tens of thousands who leave hours before performance drags to its weary conclusion.

EXTRAORDINARY HELP

The most recent such abomination in the Bronx, of course, was one of the more unfortunate examples. About eight and a half hours passed between the first pitch of the day and the last foul pop fly.

Along about nine o'clock in the evening, it was plainly evident that the Yankees and the Senators were far too weary ever to score again unless one side or the other received extraordinary help. This arrived in the last half of the fifteenth inning when Casey Stengel made his last pitching chance of the day which brought Ralph Terry in from the bullpen.

Terry hit the first Washington batter and, presently, there was a single and an intentional pass to fill the bases. Another base on balls forced over the tie-breaking run. Eager to not walk anyone else, Terry then grooved a pitch which was smacked for a single and two more runs.

Double defeat dropped New York from first place to third. Stengel screamed because Mickey Mantle forgot to run out a double play grounder, and the Yankees may never be the same again.

DISAPPEARING AUDIENCE

Granted that this was an unusual occasion it was by no means unique. A couple of Sunday doubleheaders at the Stadium last year lasted almost as long and, after one of these, the Yankees got a special treat in the form of a plane ride that got them to bed in Kansas City about 6 a.m. New York time.

This was the longest doubleheader this year, but none of the preceding ones finished in time to enable a spectator to get home for dinner at a decent hour. Not if the spectator stayed to the end and lived further from the ball park than the Concourse Plaza.

By this time, the fan knows what to expect and he always may exercise his option to walk out on the show, which so many do.

How much effect the current custom of tight scheduling has on the quality of major league play cannot be measured but, without doubt, must be considerable. Every single week-end, most clubs try to cram four games into forty-eight hours, starting with a Friday night game and then wonder why ball players are not as consistently good as they used to be.

ROUTINE IS ROUGHER

The old timers talk about how good it is for modern ball players, but after they mention money and air-conditioning they have run out of ammunition. The plain truth is that the routine of baseball is rougher than it ever was.

The 1939 Old Timers, honored here the other evening, played few, if any, night games, took fewer road trips, lived comparatively regular and orderly lives. The present-day practicability of plane travel has been mis-used, not to give ball clubs more leisure but to create more road trips.

An Eastern team once took three Western trips a year. That number was increased to four. In the last two years, there have been five. Expansion to ten clubs will provide nine cities to visit instead of seven and there won't be much sense in a ball player's unpacking his bag.

Maybe nothing can be done about that sort of progress, but it is the firm belief here that there is ample room for schedule reform in the matter of scheduled Sunday doubleheaders. On Saturday afternoons, when single games are played in New York, attendance has been first rate. It might be a good idea to give the Sunday fan an opportunity to express his preference for one high quality performance over a Class B double-feature that goes on and on.

YOUR FOREST RANGER

By Larry Stotz

She sat with her small daughter outside their big green wall tent at Heart's Content Campground. They seemed to be enjoying the quiet of this woodland setting. A large canvas water bag, dripping with moisture, hung from a tall red oak that shaded their outdoor living quarters. The evaporation from a light breeze and a shaft of sunlight, that broke through the foliage, kept the water in the bag pleasantly cool.

I stopped for a moment to get a woman's reaction to family camping on the Allegheny National Forest.

"What do you do about these characters that come around and bother you at night?" she inquired.

"Who?" I asked.

"The raccoons and skunks," she said. "There's a family of each feuding every night in front of our tent."

I breathed more easily when I found out that the trouble makers were animals and not people.

"I guess that you'll just have to live with them," I said. "After all, they're a part of the woodland scene."

"They are cute," she admitted. "Each has three babies. The raccoons seem almost human."

"They're pretty intelligent. And mischievous, too," I added.

"You can say that again," she said. "I went out for a drive the other evening with my husband and the children, and we left some groceries outside on the table. We weren't gone long, but when we got back we found that the raccoons had carried off two loaves of bread. One of them had even untwisted the cap on a jar of jam and had a feast. Then the skunks ate our eggs."

"I have a hard enough time opening a jar of jam myself. I hate to think that a raccoon might have me bested," I said.

"That's not the worst of it, though." She started to laugh. "Last night I caught the mother raccoon trying to crawl right into the tent with her babies. She lives in the top of the oak tree right above us, and makes the most awful sounds at night."

"I'd worry about the skunks," I warned. "I once had skunk trouble in New Mexico. Had a family of them under the house at the Ranger Station."

"What did you do?" she asked, looking interested.

"I was afraid to fill in the hole under the house with rocks and earth until I was sure that the skunks weren't at home. Since they're nocturnal I decided to lay for them when the moon was full. I crouched on the porch with a rifle, and waited patiently. At last a mother skunk and four babies walked past me single file with their tails raised. They were a pretty sight under a mountain moon. I lost my nerve, and put the rifle away without firing a shot. Then I worked like mad filling in the hole by moonlight while the skunk family was out foraging. They seemed to sense that they weren't welcome for they never came back."

The little girl looked relieved to know that the mother skunk and her babies escaped being shot. She was full of tales about the escapades of the raccoons and skunks at Heart's Content and I could see that it would take more than these characters to spoil this family's camping trip. I think that she secretly hoped that the mother raccoon and her babies would succeed in getting into the tent with them some night. Had I been her age I am sure that I would have felt the same way.

LIFETIME READING PLAN

Once in awhile a reviewer stumbles upon a real gem. Such is Clifton Fadiman's recent book published by the World Publishing Company, "A Lifetime Reading Plan." The book is just what the title says, a fascinating guide to one hundred books and their authors, and you may spend a few years or the rest of your life reading them. In fact, they are regarded by many as the so-called "classics" which are timeless, a source of continual stimulation and growth, and which will help the reader to a deeper understanding of what the great writers of Western civilization have thought and felt.

Mr. Fadiman prefaces his book with a cozy little talk with the reader in which he explains why he came to compile the book for which there seemed to be an amazing demand. Regardless of how long it may take you to read the list of selections they are meant to be a part of your whole lifetime, designed to help us avoid mental bankruptcy and to fill our minds slowly and gradually with the thoughts, feelings, images of the greatest writers, from Homer to Hemingway. So says Mr. Fadiman. He goes on to tell the reader that on the 1958-59 national tour of the Boston Pops, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

The Symphony Orchestra concert Sunday afternoon will feature three soloists, Blanche Winogron Beck at the harpsichord, Walter Hendl, pianist, and Nathan Gordon, violist. Mrs. Beck and Mr. Hendl will play Double Concerto for Harpsichord and Piano by C.P.E. Bach and Mr. Gordon will be heard playing Berlioz's "Harold in Italy," for Viola and Orchestra.

The final concert by the orchestra will take place Wednesday evening. Walter Hendl will conduct Mozart's Symphony No. 41, C major, K. 551, "Jupiter" and Brahms' Symphony No. 1, C minor, Opus 68.

the Plan is not meant for the highly educated or the very well read for they would find nothing new or unfamiliar in his selection and what he has to say about each one, and might even disagree with his choices and interpretations. And, indeed, his Plan has been reviewed favorably and unfavorably by many critics. His Plan is meant for the American, from eighteen to eighty, who has not met more than perhaps ten per cent of the listed authors, but who have a hunger for mental exploration.

Mr. Fadiman explains why he has chosen the particular titles included, why he has omitted the Bible, great Eastern books and many of those pertinent to Western civilization. He tells his reader that he may explore these books in any order he wishes and holds out the promise that if faithfully read so that even a surface familiarity is gained the mind will become better furnished than the minds of ninety-nine out of a hundred college graduates.

Space will not permit listing all Mr. Fadiman's selections. He divides these into nine categories. Under "The Beginning," we find Homer's Iliad and Odyssey, the Histories of Herodotus, selected works of Plato, Vergil's The Aeneid, Marcus Aurelius' Meditations, as well as works of Thucydides, Aristotle, Aeschylus, Socrates, Euripides and Lucretia.

"The Middle Ages" contains the familiar St. Augustine Confessions, Dante's Divine Comedy and Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. "Plays" are characterized by the complete works of Shakespeare and selected works of Moliere, Goethe, Ibsen and Shaw.

Most extensive treatment is given "Narratives" with thirty-two books listed. Here we find some familiar ones which, with Mr. Fadiman's guidance, bear re-reading to help us find much we missed on the first exposure to them. In this classification are Pilgrim's Progress, Robinson Crusoe, Gulliver's Travels, Tristam Shandy, Pride and Prejudice, Wuthering Heights, Pickwick Papers and David Copperfield and Great Expectations, Vanity Fair plus some of the best of D. H. Lawrence, James Joyce, Thomas Mann, Voltaire, Stendahl, Balzac, Poe, Hawthorne, Melville, Twain, De Stoevski, Tolstoy and an old loved friend of ours, Sigrid Undset's Kristin Lavransdatter.

There is a section devoted to Philosophy, Psychology, Politics and Essays, another one dealing with poetry and a collection of History, Biography and Autobiography. The section titled "Some Contemporaries" includes Robert Frost, Faulkner, Hemingway, Maugham, T. S. Eliot and Aldous Huxley. The final group aptly tabbed "Miscellaneous" refers the reader to Combrich's The Story of Art, An Introduction to Mathematics by Whitehead, Lincoln Barnett's The Universe and Dr. Einstein, Mortimer J. Adler's How To Read a Book, and Fadiman's compilation The American Treasury, 1455-1955.

One may visit a library and write down the entire list of books suggested by Mr. Fadiman. However, with a copy of The Lifetime Reading Plan at one's elbow, the going should prove more comfortable, more enjoyable and definitely more profitable. In the brief treatment given each title, Mr. Fadiman attempts to smooth the way, show the reader what to look for and what he himself has found.

This book, The Lifetime Reading Plan, is not the beginning and the end but simply a mapped route for an exciting adventure of the mind. Mr. Fadiman introduces you to some of his old and beloved friends. If they are to become yours and thereby enrich your life, you must cultivate the friendship yourself.

Powers Will Be Freed

By Inez Robb

In what follows, it is highly probable that I am cooking up not only a storm but the biggest dish of crow that will ever be set before me. Maybe my indignation at the phony trial in Moscow has unhinged my judgment.

But from the brilliant theatrics with which N. Khrushchev and his master propagandists have set the stage, I am convinced that Francis G. Powers is going to be freed. Oh, the court may find him guilty and impose sentence.

Then, when the last tear has been wrung from the sad, young wife and Powers' parents have been brought to their knees in an ultimate plea for mercy, Hopalong Khrushchev, the Communist Lochinvar, will ride out of the East, pardon the defendant and score still another propaganda victory.

The script for this trial and its "happy" conclusion were written weeks ago with a masterly cynicism that produced, for their inspired propaganda effect, visas for Powers' wife, his parents and a bevy of doctors, advisers and lawyers accompanying them.

It is inconceivable, at least to me, that visas would have been granted to the defendant's wife and parents if the great reunion scene, the dramatic climax when husband and son is again restored to the arms of his family through the generosity of Khrushchev, had not been carefully plotted long ago.

The scenario will show Khrushchev pardoning Powers as a poor boy led astray by the glittering wages offered him by the ruthless capitalist-monopolists of the United States. The world is going to be offered a stunning denunciation (of capitalist villainy) and renunciation (of punishment for Powers) scene by Khrushchev calculated to curl the hair.

For his own purposes, Khrushchev is using Powers' wife and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Powers, with ruthless cunning. It is useless to write that he is using them with "shameless" cunning, for Khrushchev has no shame.

And it is too much to expect that an Administration that fumbled the U-2 matter from the beginning would have the wit or the will to prevent the use of Powers' wife and parents as gambits in the Russian propaganda barrage. There is only pity in my heart for them, for they are unwitting pawns in this brutal game. But the State Department, which still controls American passports, was not, without its own weapon if it had had the gumption or even foresight to use it.

Public relations experts among my acquaintance are appalled at the skill with which the Kremlin experts have exploited Powers' family. The Russian P.R.O.s have milked that facet of the trial to a faretheewell. First, they readily got a front-page story by granting visas to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powers and their party. And another front-page story, speculative, on why no visa was forthcoming for Mrs. Francis G. Powers.

INTERNATIONAL LIVING. Pictured here are a small group of foreign teachers and students who are practicing in the United States under the Experiment in International Living. The visitors met at the Jones' Camp in Sheffield Wednesday evening for a picnic.

From left to right are Olasope Oyelaran, of Ogbomoso, Nigeria, now a student at Haverford College; Jackie Welch, of London, England, who is at the University of Pittsburgh; Marcella Bolis, an Italian school teacher from Milan; Pierre Brossier, of Paris, who will be teaching this year in the Spartanburg, N. C. school system; and Roland Espeel, of Agen, France, who is at Dickinson College.

Then, when the visa came through for the wife, there was another front-page kill. Next, the cable to Powers' parents in London milked the situation for another front-pager. The Moscow arrival of, first, the tearful parents, and then the distraught wife furnished further page-one material.

The Soviet propagandists have had a field day with this pitiful trio, building a melodrama as crude and corny and far more cruel than "Bertha, the Beautiful Sewing Machine Girl" or "Way Down East".

Khrushchev et al have plotted the trial and used the wife and parents with diabolic contempt. When the Russian leader has used all ingredients to whipsaw the United States, as he rawhided us at the Paris summit, watch for the so-called "happy ending" as his ultimate propaganda landslide.
